DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ekart et al. (US Patent 5,945,460) in view of Kikuchi et al. (US Patent 6,929,836). Ekart et al. teaches the basic method claimed as follows: reacting polyester precursors in one or more reactors (2) and flowing them to a suitable molding machine (10) in a continuous process without intermediate solidification or remelting of the polyester (column 7, lines 6-11). Ekart et al. does not specifically teach that the molding machine is a compression molding machine. Kikuchi et al. teaches a method of compression molding a preform by extruding a polyester composite molten resin (26), cutting the resin into portions, transporting the resulting molten resin lump (27) to a compression molding device (28, 29) and compression molding to form a multilayered preform (1), which is later stretch blow molded in to bottle (10) (column 8, lines 6-21). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use the method taught by Kikuchi et al. to further define the method taught by Ekart et al., in order to quickly and easily mold the preform utilizing a compression molding process. The motivation to use the teachings of Kikuchi et al. to modify the teachings of Ekart et al. is that both are in the same field of endeavor, that of molding polyester-based resins.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 2-7 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
